LARGE PLACE . . . SMALL WORLD

Walter McKinney, NNA president from Oregon, was talking about newspapers with Texas Press Bill Boykin, who's to take over the 25-state inland Press Association management in Chicago later this year. I walked up.

Sum of the brief conversation between the three is that McKinney is A: Going to speak to TPA this June in Arlington, and that B: he went to college at Oregon University with cousin Nancy Bedingfield in the late 40s.

Nancy herself was a social editor for the Portland, Ore., Oregonian until a stint in public relations in the Bahamas, a serious auto smashup in the 50s and now her own publication in Sun Valley, Idaho.

I've seen Nancy only once, back in Missouri in the mid-40s when we were kids.

This coincidental information came at a press reception at the White House for NNA newspaper people in town for a 13th Annual Government Affairs Conference.

So it remains a small world, even in such a "large place."

115-115-115

Beside brief remarks by the President before the reception, Pat Nixon looking young and up, speakers during the three days included William Simon, Sen. Robert Byrd, Reps. Richard Boling, Chet Holifield, Wayne Hays, James N. Hanley, James G. O'Hara and invitee Rep. Peter Rodino, Jr., plus Sen . William Proxmire and Texan presidential counselor Anne Armstrong.

Others included administrators in Commerce, environmental protection, coal research, cost of living council.

A number of us also looked in at the residence of Egyptian ambassador Ashraf Ghorbal, who gave highest marks to Henry Kissinger before this press group, the first to visit the embassy, reopened in February, since the first Arab-Israeli war in 1967.

Another reception at the Smithsonian's Henry R. Luce Hall of News Reporting followed the 1600 Pennsylvania Ave. visit. And this was a remarkable blend of congressional, newspaper and technical personages amidst a panorama of print, radio and visual history.

115-115-115

This thing of public notice now has attracted interest of American Newspaper Publishers Association, predominately a metro daily organization, focusing just about the entire newspaper spectrum on public notice.

Money is forthcoming from various press associations, professional newspaper management sources and selective press groups to finance a study of more than 100 volumes of the Code of Federal Regulations, among other publication elements around the country and its federal city.

I would think this is big enough for Texas, maybe even all of outdoors.

City Elects Blake, Moore

Vote tallies at 7 p.m. Tuesday evening showed Mayor Gene Blake re-elected for a two-year term with 377 votes. His opponent, Dean Trubee, received 164 votes.

In the city council election Ernest Moore with 341 votes defeated Gene Lumpkin who received 198 votes. This was for Place 1 on the council. Lincoln Mondrik, who was unopposed for Place 2, received 499 votes.

Writeins were counted at one vote for Bob Wells for city councilman and three votes for Porter Young for the council. A total of 544 votes was cast.

Council met for a short session following counting of the votes. Bids were opened on hose and nozzles for the new fire truck ordered at the last meeting, and low bid was from Firefox of Houston, who is also delivering the truck.

A high bid of $275 was accepted from Armstrong Plumbing for a 1971 police car. Bid of $257 was accepted for removal of a sheet metal building from city property. Council authorized bids for a new pickup for the street department.

A committee of Lawrence Zotz, Bob Clark and Ed Magre was appointed to check on an accident involving a police car and report at the next meeting.

Council also heard that the fire department is short on coats and boots. Fire Chief Monroe Bruedigan will make recommendations on what the department needs.

Yoe Students Win Sweepstakes At Waco Regional Science Fair

Two Yoe High School students became eligible to advance to the International Science and Engineering Fair after winning sweepstakes honors in the senior division at the Regional Science Fair held at Waco Thursday and Friday.

They are Gary Fuchs and David Hollas, whose projects won them a trip to the international fair to be held at Notre Dame, Indiana May 5 through 11.

A total of 24 Yoe High students took their projects to the Waco fair, and many were the awards and honors coming to them for winning from among some 277 entries.

David's project is "Monitoring Boll Weevils with Pheromones" and Gary's is "Factors Affecting Development of Atherosclerosis."

The youths were both sponsored by Mrs. Patsy Nance, of Yoe's science department.

Special awards won by students included:

Daniel Richardson, "A Study of Free Fall" presented by the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics, and a trip to their McLennan County meeting in May. Jan Burke with "Effects of Nicotine on Pillbugs," won a year's subscription to the Scientific American presented by the Biology Department of Baylor University.

Gary, Babette Hunt and Mike Mortimer won the three awards from the American Medical Technologists. Gary also won an award from the American Society of Medical Technology. Mike Mortimer won a dictionary from the American Veteriniary Association with his project, "Inducted Effects of Antibiotic Effects on E Coli."

Gary also won an award from McLennan County Medical Society and a trip to the Texas Medical Association in Houston in June. Shirley Junek won an award from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration for her project, "The Strength of Insects." Daniel was also presented a pocket slide rule from the Centex Society of Engineers. The United States Army presented certificates to Gary and Shirley and the United States Air Force gave certificates of achievement to Dwayne Tomek, David, Gary, and Paul Vaculin.

The United States Navy presented Gary an attache case and David received a $25 award from the Texas Cotton Seed Co.

The science fair awarded to the following Yoe students;

Randy Sapp won an honorable mention with "Testing the Hardness of Water" in the chemistry division; in the botany division Yoe High swept first, second and third places with Herbert Nance first with "Plant Diversity", second place to Beatrice Tomek with a study of "Stomata," and third place "Effects of X-Ray and U.V. Lights on Plant Cells" by Karen Richardson.

Glen Rummel's project "Meterology" placed third in the earth science division; in the health and medicine division Gary placed first and Babette Hunt's "True Glucose" placed third; in the math division Paul Vaculin placed third; in the zoology division David placed second, Jan Burke placed third and Shirley Junek won an honorable mention.

David has also won a trip to Boston in May. He is one of six students in Texas to win this award that is sponsored by the Junior Science Engineering Humanities Symposium.

School Confirms Hepatitis Cases

Three confirmed cases of hepatitis have been counted this week at Ben Milam School, according to school officials.

Preventative measures are being taken at the school and at homes through letters from the school to avoid spread of the highly infectious disease.

Supt. D. R. Dodson said Dr. E. D. Perrin, city health officer, is in contact with state health officials on the matter.

At school, emphasis is being put on personal cleanliness of the children, since the disease, which has a 60 day incubation period, is transmitted through personal contact.

Light Vote Expected For School Election

A light vote is expected here Saturday for the Cameron school trustee election but larger numbers are expected in Rogers and Rockdale where city elections are being held Saturday along with school board elections.

One the Cameron ISD ballot, incumbents Calvin Cobb and Mrs. Betsy Brown are the only candidates up for election. County school trustees J. D. Moore for Precinct 2 and Willy Glaser for Precinct 1 are up for re-election, along with trustee-at-large Don Humble.

Voting will be held at the Yoe Homemaking Building.

At Buckholts three candidates are running for the two places vacated by Doyal Arnold and Alvin Fuchs after 12 years of service to the district.

They are Stanley J. Glaser, Richard C. Crowe, and Mrs. Glady Allison.

That election will be held Saturday with Mrs. C. S. Raney as election judge. The election will be held at the school.

The Rockdale city council election Saturday has three contested races. Five persons are running at large for four places on the school board.

Running for mayor are incumbent Harold M. Luckey, a bank president, and Darral Walker, a drug store operator. Buck Henry is seeking re-election to the east ward council seat and Red Richards is his opponent. For the west ward seat, candidates are Ed Remaley and Collier Perry.

Running at large for the four school board slots are M. A. Rozelle and incumbents D. D. McGregor, Emory Camp, Glen Beyer and Dr. L. E. Selden.

Six candidates are seeking election to three positions on the Rogers city council.

Candidates are Dean Gommert and Billy Ray Crow, incumbents, and Elmer Don Williams, Lupe Munoz, Johnny Klecka and Bill Reid. Bill Henderson, the third incumbent, is not seeking re-election.

At Gause, three candidates are seeking election to two school board posts. They are incumbents Wayne Lee and Hollis Matthews, and James "Bobo" Todd, new candidate.

The election will be held Saturday at the school auditorium.

Milano candidates for school trustees include Joe Willingham, Stanley Betchan and Ben Lagrone.

Man Dies Of Self-Inflicted Gunshot Wound

Henry Tomasek, 53, of Route 1, Cameron, was found dead at about 9 a.m. Saturday in his home.

Cameron Justice of the Peace Jess Brock ruled the death due to self-inflicted gunshot wound. Brock said the body was discovered by a son. The man had been dead since about 7 a.m. with a bullet wound in the left side of his chest, Brock said.

Funeral was at 3 p.m. Sunday at Marek-Burns-Laywell Funeral Home, the Rev. John Homerstad officiating. Burial was in Oak Hill Cemetery.

Mr. Tomasek was born in Milam County and was a veteran of World War II and a farmer.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Irene Tomasek of Cameron; two sons, Henry D. (Tom) Tomasek and Roy Tomasek of Cameron; a brother Robert Tomasek of Cameron; a sister, Mrs. Albina Janicek of Buckholts; and two grandchildren.

Whittington Pleads Guilty To Slaying

Riley W. Whittington of Cameron, pled guilty to the slaying of his father, M. W. Whittington, on Oct. 20, 1973, Tuesday and was sentenced to 35 years in the Texas Department of Corrections.

Whittington was placed in a state mental institution following the knife slaying of his father and was released after he was found sane. He waived a jury trial.

Chancel Choir To Present Cantata

The Chancel Choir of the First United Methodist Church will present the cantata "Worthy Is the Lamb" at 2 p.m. Sunday, April 7.

Featured in the presentation will be Albert McCullin, Jr. as narrator, Catherine Thomas as pianist, Ladis Marek, Jr. as organist and Loretta Kunz as tympani soloist. The choir is under the direction of Mrs. Maurina Corley. The public is invited to attend the program of Easter music.

Hearne Bookkeeper Fired

The firing of Hearne city bookkeeper Mae Beth Bishop was due to incompetency and "not for what was said and done," Hearne City Manager E. C. Suggs said Monday.

Mrs. Bishop had contacted a Houston television station about a $12,000 check written in 1971 to a Bryan engineering firm which she found was nonexistent. The check was the subject of county grand jury indictments last week against six Hearne city officials, including Suggs.

Suggs said the city's Bryan auditing firm has recommended hiring a financial officer who would take over the city's bookkeeping duties.

"We're reducing forces," Suggs said. "We are reorganizing at this time and we are working with our auditor in reorganizing."

"As far as relieving Mrs. Bishop of her duties, it was based on her incompetency. Her work was not satisfactory. It was on her work and not what was said or done," Suggs said.

Mrs. Bishop said she was called into the city manager's office last Friday and told by Suggs: "In view of all that's happened it is to the best interest of the city of Hearne that your services be terminated. They are no longer needed."

The grand jury is also investigating a discrepancy of $10,683 in city funds which was discovered by an audit of city books several months ago.

Hearne voters elected Luke Ruffino, Harold Hill and John B. Miles Jr. to the city council Tuesday. Other candidates were Grady Griffin, Melvin Bartley, Forrest Elliott Jr.

Miles and Griffin were among four councilmen who were indicted last week by a Robertson County grand jury in connection with a $12,000 check on the city of Hearne.

MOD Walk A Success

An enthusiastic group of some 75 people from Cameron, Milano, and Buckholts left Saturday morning for the March of Dimes "Happiness Walk" which took them to Silver City and back for a distance of 15 miles.

The marchers left the courthouse at 9:15 and formed a parade continuing out the Waco highway under escort of the Sheriff's Department. Field representative of the MOD, Don Jones of Waco, was on hand for the occasion.

Prizes were awarded to: oldest marcher - Jimmy Hauk of Buckholts; youngest marcher - Tiffany Leared of Cameron; best walk signs - Marchelle Woodfin of Pettibone, Ben Morris of Cameron, Paul Mendoza and Sherry Williams of Buckholts; best dressed - Debbie Ermis. The first marcher back to Cameron was Ricky Freeland of Cameron.

A contest is being held to conclude after April 19 when prizes will be a tape deck for first prize, transistor radio for second place and a radio for third place.

Marchers must have their money turned in to the school, Mrs. Pearlie Krenek or Mrs. Florence Meissner by April 19 to be eligible for the prize for the marcher collecting the most money and the contest.

Synthesizing A 'Shambles'...

Something should be said about the Yoe High School showing at Central Texas Regional Science Fair at Baylor.

Gary Fuchs won at least five awards for a trip to the International Science and Engineering Fair May 5-11 at Notre Dame, Ind. Joining him will be David Hollas, who took a senior division second and one other award was already scheduled to go to Boston, Mass., for a Science and Humanities Symposium, following a top performance at University of Texas.

But more than 25 awards went to YHS entries in the senior divisions, which must have been a collective sweep. No school competition was intended.

Fuchs won similar recognition last year at Waco and went on to international competition in San Diego, Calif.

Mrs. Patsy Nance, YHS science teacher and sponsor, knows something about the whys of all this. James Nance, her son, went to Kansas City a couple of years ago to national competition.

There is something in knowing how to win. But when it reoccurs, it shows the finer skills, ever more than "moxie." and a lot m ore than luck.

Best we can remember, The Herald congratulates Gary and David, of course, and also Randy Sapp, Beatrice Tomek, Karen Richardson, Glen Rummel, Paul Vaculin, Jan Burke, Shirley Junek, Daniel Richardson, Babette Hunt, James Mortimer, Duane Tomek among the known winners.

For all these young Yoe scientists ability to synthesize, assemble, rationalize and explain, they left the competition in Baylor's Waco Hall in a shambles.

Smart Indian...

This newspaper, like most offset publications, accumulates a lot of aluminum plates after a few weeks' editions and sells them for a salvage price.

This is not unusual. Generally, these plates are useful for lining walls of outside frame buildings on farm or ranch or for reflective material under roofs, among other uses.

But the other day a man who said he was an Indian came in and bought several hundred plates still here. His use was different.

He melts the plates down and makes jewelry out of them.

Smart Indian.

"Low Down" FROM THE Congressional Record

By JOE CRUMP

(A Column for Readers Who Haven't Time to Review the Congressional Record Daily)

CBS FIGHTS TAPEING OF NEWS PROGRAMS

Senator C. P. Hansen (Wyo.) " . . . The Wall Street Journal . . . in an editorial commented on a court action brought by Columbia Broadcasting System — CBS — against Vanderbilt University . . .

"The article was ordered to be printed in the Record." (Excerpts follow):

CBS has asked the court to order Vanderbilt University to surrender video tapes of the "CBS Evening News with Walter Cronkite," Moreover, CBS's attorney in Nashville, Tenn., told a trade publication that if the court rules in the network's favor, it will likely erase the videotapes.

Incredible as it sounds, the Vanderbilt Television News Archive is the only place where complete videotapes of network news programs are saved permanently. Since most Americans get their information about national and international news from network TV, the archive is obviously a valuable research tool for scholars and researchers.

The collection presently consists of more than 3,000 hours of news programs, including presidential speeches, Watergate hearings and political conventions. Renters must sign an agreement not to rebroadcast or duplicate the tape.

In a suit filed in U.S. District Court in Nashville, CBS charges that the university is infringing its copyright.

But whatever the outcome in court, it seems clear that the public's right to know would be seriously abridged by erasure of the existing tapes.

CRUMP'S GRASS ROOTS COMMENT

Edith Efrom from the staff of TV GUIDE magazine made a study of the news broadcasts of all three television networks and in 1971 published the results in "THE NEWS TWISTER." It documented how the news of the vietnam war was slanted against the administration. Reaction to the NEW TWISTERS prompted a second book, "HOW CBS TRIED TO KILL A BOOK."

The attempt by CBS to have the tapes in the possession of Vanderbilt University erased may have something to do with their method of reporting on Watergate.

Take stock in America.

Constitutional Convention Recesses For Campaigning

Constitutional Convention delegates will take a break from their duties at the end of this week — until after the May 4 primaries.

They voted last week to recess for 30 days after tentative passage of local government and legislative articles — or no later than April 5. They will return at 2 p.m. May 6 to finish up.

Delegates approved by a 123-47 margin (with a two-thirds majority, or 121 votes, needed as a minimum) a 60-day extension of the convention after the recess. That means a July 30 final adjournment date whether work is completed or not.

Chances appeared brighter for agreement on a revision document for submission to voters at the general election.

Work already is completed on the preamble, bill of rights, and articles on the executive branch, education, finance, manner of amending the constitution, voting rights and local government.

The article on the legislature is expected to take all week.

Yet to be considered are judiciary and general provisions articles, which stayed in committee longer than any, and the brief article on separation of powers.

All must muster a two-thirds majority vote after the recess before they can be submitted for approval of citizens.

The convention already has cost $1.8 million. About $590,000 is left from the original legislative appropriation, which would be enough to run the convention about 30 days beyond May 6.

INSURANCE BREAK DUE — High risk drivers can get a break in insurance rates under a new plan approved last week.

The State Board of Insurance authorized "upward deviation" from standard rates for those drivers whose records do not qualify them for either reduced or standard premiums.

Phoenix Insurance Company of the Travelers Insurance Group made the first acceptable filing, providing a market for the high risk drivers at 35 to 115 per cent above manual rates for different classes of coverage.

Such drivers have been charged up to 300 per cent above standard.

First National Insurance Company of America (Safeco group) was also approved to provide coverage to higher risk drivers at an additional 15 per cent for all private passenger classes.

Sixty-nine companies have been granted Board permission to sell auto insurance at less than standard rates, and two have permission to sell at greater rates.

NORMAL TRAVEL SEEN — The energy shortage will ease enough by mid-June to insure a near-normal summer travel season in the state, according to Texas Tourist Development Agency projections.

The Sunday gasoline sales ban is the biggest factor in a six per cent decline in attendance at major Texas tourist attractions during the first two months of 1974, the tourist agency figures.

Campaigns are being sponsored to encourage Texans to spend their vacations near home and residents of neighboring states to visit Texas on well-promoted package tours.

CRIME RATE UP — Texas' crime rate rose 3.1 per cent last year, according to the Texas Department of Public Safety.

DPS reported 492,654 major criminal offenses during 1973 for a rate per 100,000 population of 4,177.2. In 1972, there were 472,011 major offenses and a rate of 4,051.9.

OFFICIAL OPINIONS — Basic information from police arrest records should remain available to the press, Atty. Gen. John Hill concluded in a revised opinion Monday. The opinion replaced a controversial one written last January holding Houston airport police could withhold detailed offense reports from newsmen.

In other recent opinions, Hill concluded:

The new lobby control law is not unconstitutional, although it may chart a fine course between lobbying and bribery.

In a series of new opinions, Secretary of State Mark White Jr. held:

Candidates can make campaign expenditures to allow the press to accompany them on their travels.

OLD PHILOSOPHER

Dear editor:

A committee, so I read in a newspaper last night because everything on television was a re-run, has spent four months studying morning television programs for children under 5 and has come up with some highly critical things to say.

In the first place, the committee said, there are too many commercials, 18 an hour, many of them making outlandish claims about how strong you'll get if you eat this or that breakfast food or that candy bar, and that's bad for the child's future.

In the first place, parents who'll let a 5-year-old dictate what cereal to buy or how much candy to eat because he saw it on television probably have no business raising kids, and in the second place kids, if they have not learned it by 5 will by the time they're 6 that the TV strength-building claims are hoakum. It's only later the grown-up commercials, are taken in by the claim you'll be more popular if you use a different tooth paste.

As to the quality of the children's programs themselves, the committee was even further outraged, saying they're terrible, they're phony, they're too loud, too frantic, in fact they're downright awful, despite the fact the kids sit spell-bound before the set for hours.

The committee doesn't understand the human situation. In the first place, a mother with a 4 or 5-year-old kid, not to mention two or three or more, will tolerate any kind of TV program so long as it keeps the kid out from under foot for a while so she can get some peace of mind.

And in the second place, imagine the frustration this nation would be engulfed in if children grew up accustomed to watching genuinely first-rate programs the networks throw at us adults every night. There are times when it's better to leave bad enough alone.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

The Family Lawyer

Myrtle bought a transistor radio from the "nice young man" who came knocking at her door. He said he was the salesman for a local distributor. But in truth, he was a thief who had stolen a dozen radios from a warehouse the night before.

On these facts, could Myrtle be found guilty of "receiving stolen property"?

Hardly. One key element of guilt is missing: some reason for her to believe the radio was stolen. Generally speaking, it is no crime to buy stolen merchandise with an innocent mind.

However, a buyer's protestations of innocence may not always be convincing. Consider the case of a farmer who bought 24 chickens from a teenager who called at his farmhouse.

In this case, the youth approached the farmhouse furtively by way of a back road. The price he asked was less than one-third of what the farmer was used to paying. And the hour was shortly past midnight.

Although the farmer insisted afterward that he was "totally surprised" to learn the chickens had been stolen, a court chose not to believe him.

Result: he was found guilty of receiving stolen property. The court observed that the sale was made "at an hour unusual for honest transactions."

Of course, the major problem in this area is not the occasional purchaser but the professional "fence" who, by providing a regular outlet for stolen merchandise, encourages the thievery in the first place.

Accordingly, most states impose an extra responsibility on businessmen who regularly buy and sell merchandise to watch out for certain suspicious circumstances. Thus a junk dealer, when offered an unusual bargain, may be required to ask more questions about the merchandise than a one-time buyer.

"The duty of diligent inquiry before purchasing," said one court, "protects the junk dealers who buy in good faith and provides punishment for those who do not."

See The Motorcycle ?

You may not find a motorcycle in this picture, but you'll find plenty of them on Texas' streets and highways.

The trouble is, not enough automobile drivers are seeing motorcycles when they should. Not until it's too late, anyway.

Maybe if motorcycles were as big as trains, you'd be more careful when you see them. But nothing is bigger than human life. And that's what we're really asking you to look out for.

VENCE COPORA

NOTES FROM SCS...

Donald Henson, SCS technician, assists Vence Copora check irrigation water application as he applies supplemental irrigation to cotton.

Corpora has performed irrigation land leveling on approximately one hundred acres of cropland located on his farm near Maysfield. Land leveling has made more efficient use of irrigation water and rainfall; plus erosion damage has been held to a minimum.

Corpora practices water conservation by applying surface irrigation. Water is carried to the field by pipes, then rows, with controlled outlets distribute water across the field evenly; thus, there is little water loss. Irrigation water is applied according to the moisture needs of the crop to achieve optimum production while reducing losses of soil and plant nutrients.

Vence states that because of shortages in energy, labor, and water, a good irrigation water program is more important than ever before. He is protecting his land and conserving water as he uses all resources to make the land more productive.

Disruptions Caused Shortage

The short supply of meat in early 1974 came about because of a series of events last summer and spring. Meat industry spokesmen say the meat boycott, price ceilings and higher feed costs created market disruptions which discouraged increased production of meat animals which ordinarily would have been moving to market in the first quarter of 1974.

4-H Activities

Milam County 4-H'ers brought home ribbons and honors from the Austin Livestock Show held March 22-23. Thorndale members exhitited 13 beef heifers and Cameron members showed two gilts and two dairy heifers.

It's Time For Planting Cotton

By Bill McCutchen

A little cotton was planted and some was even up before last weeks freeze, but for the most part farmers will be trying to get cotton planted the first few weeks in April.

It is important that as much cotton acreage as possible be planted early and about the same time, if possible.

Early planting is a must on land with a history of cotton root rot problems. Cotton root rot organisms require soil with a history of cotton root rot problems. require soil temperatures 80 degrees to grow and early planting will help in setting a crop before root rot kills the plant.

In years when most of the cotton is planted at the same time, the cotton boll weevil is much easier to handle also. Early fields become breeding grounds and late cotton fields often are swamped by weevils migrating from older cotton.

HOME GARDEN

Nematode problems are becoming more prevelant in home gardens every year it seems, and there really has not been a real effective material that was easy enough for a home gardner to use in controling this soil pest.

This year Dr. Jerral Johnson, Extension plant pathologist was asked to assist in a control demonstration in Milam County and E. J. Provasek's garden was selected because of high root known nematode pressure.

The material used in the demonstration was Vapam. The soil was worked well in early February and on February 11th one quart of Vapam was applied per 100 sq. ft. of garden space with a hose on sprayer. Sprinklers were then turned on immediately after treatment to soak the soil to a depth of 3 inches. One inch of water was applied for 3 additional days to leach the chemical into the soil and act as a seal.

The soil was to be worked after 3 weeks to allow any residual chemical to vaporize and then the garden was ready to plant.

Nematode control by this method would be better in the Fall, avoiding any planting delay in the Spring, and also avoiding cold weather when should not be applied when soil temperature is less than 55 degrees.

This application is a control measure only, and will be necessary on an annual basis. There are no chemicals that will completely eliminate nematodes under field conditions and they gradually multiply again as the year wears on.

Results of this demonstration will be reported later in the year, as there are many gardeners with this problems who will be interested in the results.

There's one side benefit of this Vampa application that we hadn't counted on, E. J. said he had had no cutworms or grubworms damage to garden plants.

PECAN MEETING SET

,Dr. Arlie Powell, Extension Service horticulturist will visit with commercial pecan producers and homeowners Thursday evening April 11 at 7:30 p.m. at the Vocational Agricultural classroom in Rockdale.

Powell will visit with the group on pecan varieites, and insect and disease control. Several USDA pecan varieties have been recently released and he will explain their potential for this area as well as reviewing old varieties.

Powell will also cover a perennial problem, that of controlling insect and disease problems of pecans.

The meeting is open to anyone interested in pecans.

Down, Down, Down... Broilers Not Chicken Feed... Citrus Crop Report Shows Decline.

For the 17th consecutive month, milk production has shown a decline. In Texas, milk production during February dropped four per cent below a year ago, and seven per cent under a month ago. Milk production in Texas during February totaled 244,000,000 pounds.

Milk production per cow averaged 700 pounds during February. This is 10 pounds below last year and 50 pounds below the previous month.

Nationwide, milk production during February showed a three per cent decline. Production during the first two months of 1974 was three per cent below the corresponding period a year ago.

Milk production per cow on a nationwide basis stabilized during February. Production per cow was 776 pounds; this is the same as a year ago. But it is six per cent below January of this year.

Milk cows on farms during February totaled 11,227,000 head. This is down three per cent from the same month a year ago.

Meanwhile, dairy price supports to become effective April 1 will be at the lowest level permitted by law—80 per cent.

Continued high cost of production is the main reason for a continuing decline in milk production.

For example, Texas dairymen paid an average of $137 per ton for mixed dairy feed (16 per cent protein) in January compared to $105 per ton in February of 1973.

Texas dairymen paid an average of $86 per ton in February for baled alfalfa hay compared to $71 per ton in February of 1973.

THE BROILER business in Texas is not chicken feed, according to a summary from the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

Gross income from broilers in Texas during 1973 totaled $146,221,000. This is an increase of more than $50,000,000 over 1972.

Average price received for 1973 was 22.8 cents per pound liveweight. This is the highest average price since 1955 when it was 25.5 cents per pound. The 1973 average price was 8.6 cents per pound higher than in 1972.

Texas is in seventh place in the nation in the number of broiler chicks placed in 1973. Commercial broilers placed in the state last year totaled 178,991,000. This is a three per cent decrease from 1972.

The weekly high for placements was 3,994,000 during the week of March 31; the lowest was 2,852,000 during the week of October 27.

Nationwide, a decrease of two per cent in broiler placements was noted in 1973 compared to 1972. The average price nationwide was 23.9 cents per pound.

BASED on March 1 prospects, the Texas citrus crop is down slightly from a month ago.

Virtually all of the grapefruit and most of the Valencia oranges have been harvested, although Valencia harvesting is expected to remain active during the remainder of the month. Most of the fresh market crop is expected to be picked by April 1. Many fresh market packinghouses plan to shut down as early as April.

Citrus tree condition varies greatly throughout the Valley. Most groves are extremely dry and are requiring irrigation.

Nationwide, the 1973-74 grapefruit is forecast to be down one per cent from the February 1 estimate and two per cent below last season.

Chili Marks Over 40 Years In Cameron

By Lloyd Albertson

When the downtown Urban Renewal program made it necessary for Chili Manning to move his shoe store from its Houston Street location to new quarters at the corner of First Street and North Central Avenue about two years ago, it was the fourth move for him during his business career in Cameron that goes all the way back to 1926.

That forty plus span of years makes him one of the long time businessmen in the city. So it may come as an unexpected bit of information about him to learn that, as he himself admits, working in a store wasn't the first choice among his boyhood plans as a way to earn a buck.

As he tells it, the family was living in the country in Bell County during his high school days, and his mother "told us kids she thought it was time for us to get jobs and help with the family's finances." She suggested he pick cotton or go to work in a store.

Chili said he decided to pick cotton.

"Man!" he recalls the experience. "It was hot out there in that cotton patch. I picked and picked and only picked thirty pounds of cotton in three hours. The sun was bearing down, and some little black ants nearly ate me up. I told Mama I never was so uncomfortable in all my life."

"The next day I walked six miles into town and got a job working in a store."

He hasn't, he added, picked any cotton since.

Chili came to Cameron in 1926 and went to work for the Leader. Later he moved across the street to work for Henry Lippman. "I sold shoes for the Leader and also for Lippman," he says.

In 1930 he was employed by Montgomery - Ward and during the next three years worked in their stores in Brownwood, in Bryan and in Lafayette, Louisiana.

He believes he received some valuable training and learned a good deal about merchandising while with the big nationwide concern.

"They believe in turnover," he says, "and I do, too."

In 1933 he returned to Cameron and opened his own shoe store. "It was in the back of the old Tiff Moore building and was where the cafe's kitchen had been located," he recalls those early days. "But three years later I moved it across the street to the building now occupied by the Ben Franklin store."

Like a good many of Cameron's young businessmen, he was in the service during World War II. From 1942 until 1946 he was in the Army, in medical transportation, and was overseas in Africa, Italy and France. His mother ran the store while he was away.

On his return home in 1946 he found that his lease on the building was expiring and he would have to move.

"It's hard to believe now, he commented, "but back there in 1946 the town was filled up. There was only one vacant building -- that one on Houston Street. So I bought it."

Chili was among the first of Cameron's merchants to relocate when the downtown Urban Renewal program got underway about two years ago. He purchased the old Green Furniture Warehouse building on the corner of North Central and First Street, had it completely remodeled, and had moved in well before the demolition crews and the bulldozers razed his old building on Houston Street.

The move gave him the opportunity to construct what was practically a new building. He has believed all during his career that an attractive store makes for good business. And so the new store was designed with that in mind. There are wide plate glass windows across almost the entire front. Light tan paneled walls inside and white stucco walls outside. Fluorescent lighting. Colorful fixtures and furniture. All the modern features.

The results weren't long in showin up.

"You know", Chili remarked to a friend, "after I moved into my new store some of my customers began coming in and asking for better brands of shoes and higher priced ones than they ever used to buy from me. I'm having to carry more of the expensive lines than before."

He likes to take pride, though, in being able to meet a customer's wishes, whether its for a lower or higher priced pair of shoes.

"When someone comes in," he says, "I like for him to tell me what he's looking for in a pair of shoes and also what he's prepared to pay -- whether $5 , $7.50 or whatever. That way I can do my best to find something to suit him and that is worth the money."

If he wanted to offer any advice on buying shoes, he says it would be this: You should try to select a little better quality than you planned to buy at first. It will pay off both in better wear and in satisfaction.

Chili formed a partnership in 1949 with Joe Lewis, a Waco businessman who owns a number of shoe stores in the Central Texas area, and it is still in effect twenty five years later. The association give him the advantage of quantity buying and of a wider range of brands in shoes than is possible for a single store to have.

In a career that spans over forty years, it is inevitable that a few unusual incidents will occur, and Chili can recall several in his case. One in particular concerned a local businessman who came into the store to buy a new pair of shoes just before he was due to attend a funeral. After he had tried on several pair, he realized he was running short of time, and hurried over to the funeral home. Later at the graveside in the cemetery, when the minister began a prayer, he lowered his eyes and was startled to see that he was wearing one style of shoe on his left foot and a different style on his right foot.

"He hurried right back to the store as soon as the ceremony was over and I sold him a pair of shoes," Chili said. "But he said he sure was embarrassed there in the cemetery for a few minutes.

Another incident he remembers, he sold the man who was to play Santa Claus a pair of "squeaky" shoes. He almost balked because he didn't think he could play Santa Claus wearing squeaky shoes. Chili said he later exchanged the squeaky pair for a silent pair.

Maybe back there in that cotton patch a combination of a hot sun and some little black ants gave Chili an uncomfortable time, as he told his mother. But the result wasn't bad. As it turned out, it steered him into a long and successful career as a shoe store owner and Cameron businessman. And that beats picking cotton any day.

Outstanding BSA Units Will Win New Awards

Outstanding Scout troops and Cub Scout packs in the Heart O' Texas Council, Boy Scouts of America, will be recognized annually during the next 3 years for quality unit program, council program director Bill O'Pry announces.

The National President's Boypower Unit Award will be presented as special recognition to units that meet minimum quality program requirements O' Pry explained. The award program, a part of Boypower '76, the long-range plan of the Boy Scouts of America, is based on each of 3 years from April 1 to March 31.

Similar awards will also be available for Explorer posts and ships that are a part of Exploring BSA in Heart O' Texas Council's 11-1/2 county area.

The awards will be received by a Cub Scout pack that earns the National Summertime Pack Award; achieves its advancement goal; participates in two or more district or council activities; reregisters on time; and conducts a quarterly uniform review.

Requirements for a Scout troop are 10 days and nights of camping including a long-term camp of 6 consecutive days; achieving its goal for progress awards; participation in 2 or more district or council activities; re-registration on time; quarterly uniform review; and completion of Cornerstone training by the Scoutmaster.

Boypower '76, which was lunched in 1969, calls for Boy Scouts of America to serve by 1976 a representative one-third of boys of all races, colors, creeds, and economic status, O'Pry said. There is also an emphasis on providing a program relevant to the needs and concerns of youth and to maintain a high level of quality for BSA programs.

Law Day Set At Baylor U

WACO

This year's law Day activities at Baylor University will feature dedication of the Leon Jaworski Wing to Morrison Constitution Hall, which houses the Baylor School of Law, and a speech by Chesterfield Smith, president of the American Bar Association.

Law Day at Baylor is held in conjunction with national Law Day USA. The 27th annual day of activities at Baylor will be celebrated this year on April 27.

Dedication of the Leon Jaworski Wing will begin at 3 p.m. in the parking lot adjacent to the new wing, which opened for classes at the beginning of the law school's spring quarter.

The wing is named for Leon Jaworski, a graduate of Baylor's law school and current special Watergate prosecutor. Jaworski was appointed special prosecutor last fall by President Richard M. Nixon.

Jaworski will be present for Law Day, and he will speak during the dedication ceremonies, which are expected to attract between 600 and 1,000 people.

Both Morrison Constitution Hall and the new wing will be open for tours beginning at 1 p.m. April 27.

After the dedication ceremonies, tours of the new wing willcontinue, and the Baylor Law Wives Association will host receptions for Jaworski in both first and second-floor Lawyers Lounges in the law school.

New Law To Affect Disabled

A new law which would affect 5,000 disabled people in Texas is under consideration in Congress, according to Pete Wall, District Manager in Temple Social Security Administration District Office.

The bill, which was passed by the House of Representatives March 5, would prevent an April 1 cutoff in supplemental security income payments to people who started getting disability payments from Texas after June 1973, he explained.

Under the original law, which was passed in 1972, we would have continued payments to everyone who had been getting disability payments from Texas in December, Wall said.

But a change made on December 31, after the first month's check were already in the mail, requires usto make a new disability decision for everyone who went on the state disability rolls after June, 1973. In many cases new medical evidence will be necessary.

New Plan Set For Job Corps

SAN MARCOS

Regional rather than national assignments of job corpsmen is expected to benefit programs at three Job Corps Centers administered by the Texas Educational Foundation, Inc. (TEF).

TEF is the non-profit corporation which operates the nations largest center, Gary Job Corps center at San Marcos, McKinney center for women at McKinney and the El Paso residential manpower center in west Texas.

Students from northern, eastern and western states will be placed in their home areas for training.

Job Corps is often the last chance for some young men and women to learn a trade. In addition to learning a job skill the carefully designed TEF programs strengthen basic education skills and place emphasis on personal development.

Nationally, an impressive 93 per cent of Job Corps graduates have been placed in jobs with 72 per cent starting at $2.21 per hour, according to U. S. Secretary of Labor Peter J. Brennan.

For more information about the new regional assignment plan or enrollment in Job Corps contact your local Employment Commission office.

When we become mired in the routine of life, one day is like any other. This was just another working-day for most of the people in Jerusalem.

Three men died on Calvary Hill. One of them was the Galilean!

Business as usual in Jerusalem. Unless we understand the whole significance of what is happening we pay little attention . . .

Do you understand what happened that Friday? Do you realize WHO hung on that central Cross? Do you know WHY He died? And FOR WHOM?

There is nothing more necessary in our lives than the deep, personal knowledge of what happened that Friday . . . and the Sunday following.

Come to Church!

Yoemen Rally To Beat Taylor,6-5

Four home runs and a fine pitching performance by John Barron, permitted the Cameron Yoemen to rally against the Taylor Ducks for a 6-5 victory Monday evening in Cameron.

The Ducks struck early in the first inning for their 5 runs but then John Barron went to the mound with two outs to relieve George Whiteside. Barron pulled the Yoemen out of the jam, and then allowed only one hit, no runs, and struck out ten Duck batters.

Jeff Smitherman, Craig Friemel, Ricky Sapp, and Joey Mondrik all hit home runs during the game with Sapp's tying the game at 5-5. Then Jeff Smitherman's sacrifice fly drove John Barron in from third base for the winning run.

The Yoemen will begin district play against Lampasas on Thursday (today) April 4th in Cameron. The game is scheduled to begin at 5 p.m.

By Tom Murray

QUICKIES:

According to Mike Finley, The Baytown Sun Sports Editor, Arkansas wooed Angleton Superback Tommy Woods away from Houston U. because all AU Assistant football coach spent signing-day eve snoozing in the Woods hacienda . . . One Houston Astro official, trying to explain Preston Gomez' approach to managing, as opposed to the departed Leo Durocher: "Preston will make the ball-players take pride in themselves. And, it will show on the field. He'll make 'em clean up. shave, dress decently and act like professionals. There were times last year our club went to the airport so ratty I was ashamed to be associated with them."

Mike Perrin, Texas' 1967 All-SWC Defensive end, now an outstanding young Houston Plaintiff Lawyer, has just returned from Vail, the Colorado Ski Capital. Apparently, Perrin attacks those Rocky Mountain Slopes the way he once did enemy ball carriers. Mike, the pride of Cameron, is the son-in-law to Texas Attorney General John Hill.

Vernon Hallbeck, the former TCU football star and later Horned Frog coach, is developing a Multi-Million Dollar Residential subdivision just outside Jackie Burke and Jimmy Demaret's famed Houston Champions Golf Club . . . Hallbeck, the old San Benito fullback, has his diggings only a crip show away from Joe McDermott's Multim, Multi Champions Shopping Center. McDermott you recall, as the old Lufkin, boy who followed Morris Frank to Houston to become an All-SWC Rice Owl basketballer . . . Hustling Land Syndication in the same area is Carl Warwick, the former TCU All-American who starred in the Los Angeles, Saint Louis and Houston Astro outfields.

Ever consider the incongruity of some small towns turning out a mammoth super football lineman? Takes the law of averages out of recruiting, you know. Like Bob Lilly coming from Throckmorton. Or, Ralph Neely from Farmington. Or, Bud McFadin from Iraan and Harley Sewell from St. Jo. Then, there were the Lansford Brothers from Carizzo Springs, Jim and Buck. Of course, the foregoing were about the cream of down-linemen in the history of football and in the Southwest. They would average 6-4, 240 pounds and come from Hometowns of 5000 or less, on the average.

Delta Flying Is Latest Craze

By Scott Thornton

SWITZERLAND

Reuter -- The yellow clad figure broke into a spring down the snowy mountainside, leaned forward into space and hurled himself into the void.

The Alpine breeze seized the billowing cloth of the wing floating above, pulled it taut and he floated effortlessly through the chilly air towards the ground thousands of yards below.

They call themselves "Birdmen" and this is their sport -- delta flying. The idea is to jump off mountains -- or off anything -- and thrust in a 15-foot span of aluminum and sailcloth to take them earthwards at speeds of up to 70 miles an hour.

At the first European delta flight competition, held here recently, the rules were more complicated.

The 45 contestants had to weave in and out of a slalom course marked out by airborne balloons, by pushing and tugging at the guiding triangular bar. The course measured 2,000 yards through a vertical drop of 700 yards. But no one was hurt.

"Danger? It's one of the safest sports in the world. You just make sure there are no violent winds to take you in the wrong direction" said the secretary-general of the championships, Philippe Hermann.

According to Hermann, Delta flying is harmless. Thousands of people around the world have taken up the sport, mainly in North America, Europe and Australia.

"You need courage to jump with such a great drop in front, but once you've overcome that fear the sensation is marvellous. You just glide," he said.

The flyer is fastened by a leather harness to a wing, made out of about 18 square yards of sailcloth. Momemtum for takeoff is gained by running or skiing the first few yards.

The first holder of the European cup for delta-flying is 40-year-old Swiss garage owner Etienne Rithner, who incurred 190 penalty points in attempting to negotiate between the balloons and pinpoint himself in the center of a circle marked out in the snow.

The only girl in the field, 17-year-old Isabelle Poussiere from Metz in France, took the special women's prize.

Delta flight owes its birth to the United States space program. In 1961 Francis Rogallo, an aeronautics engineer attached to NASA, saw that the apparatus invented for the retrieval of capsules could have sporting uses.

Rabies Still Threat To Health

Fewer and fewer dogs are infected with rabies each year, but the disease is still a major threat to our health, notes Dr. James Armstrong veterinarian for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Now the threat comes mainly from wildlife. Over 80 per cent of the rabies cases reported in the United States during July and August 1973 involved wildlife. And the disease is most prevalent in hot, summer weather.

Of 261 rabies cases confirmed by the Texas State Department of Health in 1973 200 involved wildlife. Skunks were the animals most frequently found infected with the disease. Bats, foxes, raccoons, ringtails and coyotes accounted for most of the other wildlife cases.

"All warm-blooded animals can be infected with the virus disease," says Armstrong. "The Texas Health Department confirmed 15 cases in horses, one in sheep and 23 in cattle last year as well as five in dogs and 17 in cats," says Armstrong.

The disease is usually transmitted by the bite or lick of a rabid animal since the virus is carried in the infected animal's saliva, explains the veterinarian. Once in the body, the virus infiltrates the nerve fibers and attacks the nervous system, resulting in death if no treatment is given.

"When infected with rabies, wildlife are a threat in areas of human habitation as well as in their native habitat," continues Armstrong. "An infected wild animal may suddenly become tame and approach people and their environment in a friendly way. Thus children should be warned to stay away from such seemingly tame wildlife as well as dying animals."

OUR NEW MEAT LABELS TELL YOU WHAT YOU NEED TO KNOW

Our new meat identification program takes the guesswork out of selecting meat and how to prepare it . . . helps you be a "smarter" meat shopper and a better cook. Our improved meat label tells you at a glance the type of meat (Beef, Pork, Lamb or Veal), where it comes from, and the specific portion or common retail name.

WHICH MEAT SHOULD YOU BUY?

Because meat accounts for the largest single expense in your food budget—about ⅓—wise buying, storing and cooling are particularly important.

It's not necessary to buy lesser quality to save either. Learn which cuts are the most economical. (These should be cooked by the moist heat methods—braising or cooking in liquid.) Choose those with a minimum of fat around the edge and as few bones as possible. Learn to buy and think by price per serving.

We want to help you shop harder... if you would like a copy of our meat shopping and labeling guide, please send me your name and address.
